CHINESE REGISTRATION.

Secretary of Treasury Gage Provides Rules for It.

The manner in which the Chinese of the Hawaiian Islands are to be registered as provided by law, is set forth Hawaii prior to June 14, 1900, are eli- at the present moment. gible for such registration. Deputies of the Internal Revenue Department will be sent to the various Islands and open offices where the applications can be filed. A positive assurance and certificate are to be rendered by each applicant that he was a resident of the Islands before the date named. No application will be received later than June 13, 1901. Applications must be sent by deputies to the collector, who will issue the certificates of residence and return them to the deputies for delivery in their respective divisions.

Every applicant will be required to furnish two unmounted photographs of himself or herself securely pasted upon the application.

The affidavit of at least one creditable witness must be secured and as tached to the application. Under the head of "Definitions" the instructions say: All classes of skilled and unskilled manual laborers, including Chinese employed in mining, fishing, huckstering, peddling, laundrymen, or those engaged in taking, drying or otherwise preserving shell or other fish for home consumption or exportation, shall be classed as laborers. A person to be exempted from the operation of the law as a merchant must be a person engaged in buying and selling merchandise at a fixed business which business is conducted in his name. and who, during the time he claims to be engaged as a merchant does not engage in the performance of any manual labor except such as is neces-

After postponements that have covered several months, the case of Matt Howard came up for trial in the Police Court yesterday morning. The charge was assault with a deadly weapon. Some important witnesses could not be found, among them witness Bailey, and as Mr. Buckley, the other witness, was in San Francisco, not much could entered, and there being no objection, this was done.

YOUNG BLOCK ARCHITECT PERCY DIES IN CALIFORNIA

EORGE W PERCY, architect of the Young block, Honolulu, and one of the best-known architects on the Coast, died in Oakland at his residence on December 14 after a brief illness.

Alexander Young, who received the news of the architect's death in the mail which arrived by the transport Logan, was seen by an Advertiser reportyesterday afternoon and was asked whether the death of the architect would make any change in the plans for his new building. Mr. Young replied that Mr Percy had completed all the plans and nothing was left undone. The building would be erected according to the plans and specifications made by the deceased.

The following statement of the death of Mr. Percy, together with his blog-rapy, is taken from the San Francisco Call of December 15.

OAKLAND, Dec. 14.—George W Percy, the well-known architect, of the firm of Percy & Hamilton, in San Francisco, died very suddenly at his home, and Boulevard Terrace, in this city, this morning. Mr. Percy had not been to cling very well for some time, but it was not regarded as serious. He had been in constant attendance upon his office and was there yesterday. He came home last evening complaining of a cold. This morning the weather was threatening, and Mrs. Percy prevailed upon her husband to remain at home. Shortly before noon Mr. Percy was selzed with a violent headache. Dr. Liliencantz was called, but before he arrived Mr. Percy was dead.

The funeral will take place from the residence on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

2 o'clock.
George W. Percy was one of the best known architects in the State. He built may of the prominent structures in San Francisco, Oakiard, Alamebuilt may of the prominent structures in San Francisco, Oakiard, Alamebua, Stockton and Los Angeles. He was the architect of the conseum on Strawberry Hill, in Golden Gate Park, of the children's building and of several other structures in the park. He was the architect of the Academy of Sciences building on Market street, of the Wells-Fargo block on Mission street, the Hobart estate building, the Folger estate building and the Edison electric building, and he was engaged in work upon the Alvinza Hayward residence at the time of his death.

In Oakland Mr. Percy had just completed the de Fremery estate building in Washington street, and he had completed the plans for a business block.

George W. Percy was born in Bath, Me., in 1847, and received his early education in the Kents Hill Academy in that State. He took several sea trips and then devoted himself to the study of architecture under Mr. Fassett in Portland, Me. He then went to Boston, where he entered the offices of Bradley & Winslow. In 1869 he came to California and built the Stockton Insane Asylum buildings. When the great fire swept Chicago he went to that city, and from there went to Boston after the big fire there. In that city he built the Equitable Life Insurance building. In 1876 he returned to California and has lived here ever since. and has lived here ever since.

Mr. Percy has been a resident of Cakland for fourteen years. He leaves a widow and four children, two girls at d two boys. He was one of the committee that selected the plans for the Cakland Free Library, now in course of construction, and was president of the Technical Society of San Francisco. Alexander Young leaves for San Francisco today by the steamer City of Peking. His trip is rather unexpected, but is connected with the news received by him on the last steamer of the sudden death of G. W. Percy, the architect of the Young block. As the architect had several large contracts to let, Mr. Young found it imperative that he should go to San Francisco to personally look after his affairs.

Java, Singapore, Cochin China and Hongkong would be intolerable. Most of all it is to be noted that this cable is to be an exclusively British one, and is to be made so in spite of much additional labor and expense. It might be laid more readily by far by utilizing some American, German and French islands as landing places. But the British will not have it so. At every point it must be under the Union Jack. So, starting from Vancouver, instead of making its first landing on the Hawaiian Islands—a pretty long span-it will run right past these to Fanning Island, hundreds of miles further, making a span of enormous length. And at Fanning Island, instead of being on a large, populous and civilized island, it will be on a remote and desolate rock. Similarly it will run past Samoa to Fiji, and past New Caledonia to the Australian Coast, But all that is the part of wisdom, for it will give the British Empire such means of communication entirely upon its own ground and under its own control.

The United States needs just as much to have such communication with all its insular possessions, and to have it exclusively on its own ground and under its own control. It may not-from the present indications probably will not-secure it as soon as Great Britain will. But it can secure it much more easily. Its route is shorter and more direct than the British, and does not include any one span nearly so long as that from Vancouver to Fanning Island. How such a finding see them carried out, and closed their could have been reached in the teeth of the Monroe doctrine is difficult to mercy. There were exceptions among imagine, it is more difficult to see how it could have adapted itself to common. patriotism. Nevertheless the treaty also in some instances, to their honor embracing Mr. Clayton's fantasles was be it said, succored the hapless vicsigned, sealed and delivered, becoming times of prejudice and fanaticism, a contract obligation to be held sacred by the signatory powers until dissolved by mutual consent. With incredible personal risk. But in most cases there fatuity the Democratic Secretary of were none to deliver; amid the crowd State had made it impossible for this of mocking faces not one expressed country, without breaking its word, to withdraw from the treaty, lacking such consent. There was nothing for Secretary Hay to do but to make the best of the Clayton blunder. He agreed to the British conditions, subject to the ac tion of the Senate. It was not his fault that America had been sold out; it was his duty to get back as much as possible, and he recovered the right to control the projected waterway in all save that of closing it in time of But the Democratic papers shouted, "Treason, treason!" with one voice, though the treason had long since passed, leaving a black stain on the record of their own party. Viewing the Hay-Pauncefote treaty from the point of honor we think it should have passed, but the Senate, by a large majority, amended it so as to permit the fortification of the canal by the United States Government. To our mind this makes the early construction of the canal an improbabil-Great Britain, unless prepared to humble herself to a degree of magnanimity but little short of spaniel acquiescence, will not consent to the forts, whereupon, the Hay-Pauncefote treaty will fall to the ground and the United States will revert to its former position under a treaty that gives Great Britain joint control of a Nicaraguan cut, even though this country may foot all the bills of canal work last estate is worse than the first. It is understood that the passenger accommodations of this new ship will be extremely large. There will be 850 or 900 first cabins. The second cabin section will contain in the neighborhood of 500 rooms. There will be no steerage accommodations. It is not probable that there will be any cargo capacity, as it is believed the room used for this purpose can better be utilized by the apparatus required to move economical produce and utilize the steam required for motive power.

While the new vessel will be broader in proportion to her length than some of our present liners, her draught will be in the neighborhood of thirty feet when leaving port. With a consumption of 1,800 tons of coal per day it will naturally be much lighter with coal each day of her voyage,

It is possible that nickel and other alloys will enter largely into the construction of her plates and hull in order to secure greater strength combined with less weight. The fore bulk-ceived by the company and an extra heads, running the entire length of the charge be made therefor, at or before engine room, will be used as the sides and fronts of the coal bunkers and will give her all the longitudinal strength of a double track railway

WRECK NEAR GIBRALTAR

Frigate Gneisenau Goes Down in Storm at Malaga--Captain Kills Himself.

MADRID, Dec. 16.-The German training frigate Gnessenau has foundered off Malaga, northeast of Gibraltar. The Gneisenau foundered at the entrance to the port of Malaga, where she was about to take refuge from the terrible storm prevailing. A large number of the cadets can be seen from the shore clinging to the rigging. They are shouting and signaling for help. The captain and many of the cadets have been drowned. It is believed that forty who left in one of the ship's boats and have not been seen since, are lost. The total loss is now thought to be no less than 100. Some dispatches say 140. Forty of those saved are badly The training ship has been at Malaga since November 1st, practicing with guns of large caliber. She had been previously at Megador, Morocco. At 10 o'clock this morning a review of the cadets was in order. The wind was extremely violent and instructions were given to stoke up as rapidly as possible. But already mountainous waves had struck the ship, snapping the anchor chains. She was driven helpless toward the port and sank The crew threw themselves into the sea and clung to the wreckage, but the majority quickly disappeared. Captain Kresthmann died at his post.

The Malaga lifeboat made three efforts and rescued fifteen, but the weight capsized the boat and twelve were drowned. The other three were saved by means of ropes thrown to them. The port authorities saved many of the sailors. The survivors have been received at the hospital, the Hotel de Ville and private houses. All the theaters in Malaga abandoned their performances this evening. Gneisenau, which was built at Dantzic in 1879, was an iron vessel, sheathed with wood, and had a displacement of 2,856 tons. She was 242 feet 9 inches in length and 45 feet 11 inches in beam, having a mean draft of 19 feet 8 inches and a coal capacity of 400 tons. Her armament consisted of fourteen 5.9-inch Krupp breechloaders, two 3.4-inch quick firers, one boat or field gun, and seven torpedo tubes. Her complement was 461, and she was used for training boys. It is rumored that the commander of the Gneisenau committed suicide when he saw that all was lost. A nephew of the Imperial Chancellor, Count von Buelow, named Berndt, was among the saved, though he was injured about the head. A sailor who survived the wreck went mad as a re-

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.-This was the individual suspension day in the House. The speaker first recognized Mr. Bromwell, of Ohio, who moved to suspend the rules and pass the bill reported by the civil service committee to give preference to honorably discharged soldiers in the executive departments of the government. It provided that honorably discharged sol diers of the civil war and after them honorably discharged soldiers of the Spanish war and the war in the Philippines be given preference both in appointment to office and retention therein, and that loss of limbs or other public impairment, which does not incapacitate shall not disqualify them. After an interesting debate, the bill was defeated 51 to 105.

"WHEN HE FEELS OFF COLOUR."

It would, no doubt, have been wise in Mr. D. Lanham to take a complete rest on Sundays anyway, but all the more so under the circumstances he mentions.

Mr. Lanham is a cooper, and for the last twenty-five years has pursued his calling in Charlotte Street, Brisbane, Queensland. That he is known to most of the people of the city naturally follows; for Brisbane has attained its prominence within that period.

"Some seven years ago," writes Mr. Lanham, under date of Sept. 28, 1899, "I began for the first time in my life to suffer from indigestion. With it were asthmatic symptoms, although I dld not then understand that the latter complaint is often caused by the items of intelligence about the Tsuki- the wonderful development of Japan jima Maru are now arriving thick and in civilization is due to the Empress doubting that the worst that had been apprehended about her has happened. The unknown corpse washed ashore on the beach of Shizuura, near Numazu, has been identified by the search party dispatched by the Merchants' Marine School to be that of Mr. Matsumoto, captain of the ill-fated ship. A door of the students' berths quarter has also been discovered, while within the space of about one mile radiating from the shoal of Senoumi, off the coast of the province of Suruga, broken spars and other things have been found drifting. An experienced sailor is of opinion that the ship must have been wrecked on the shoal, which is only 18 fathoms deep, while all the surrounding places in the Bar of Suruga have a depth of from 800 to 700 fathoms; the shoal is a terror to sailors, and as it is a place of danger even in ordinary days, it must be tenfold more so on the occasion of Tsukijima Maru.

YOKOHAMA. Dec. 12.—Beyond the identification of the remains of Capt.
Matsumoto, no other important discovimportance is that which reached the Merchants' Marine School on Saturday last to the effect that the site of the place where the wreck of the ship occurred has been ascertained to be that where the remains of the captain had been found. In other words, the place of the disaster is judged to have been Seno umi, for it was there that captain's remains were discovered by the fishermen of Shizu-ura, in the waster in the seno unit, as previously reported, Honolulu but for others ports in the sale by all dealers and druggists. Bentuckers from the records of Harbor Master Fuller.

The Chuo's special corporation of the presents worth 60,000 taels to the Empress Downger for her birthday. respondent sends an account of the story which these fishermen told him about the discovery of the corpse. According to that account, it was in the afternoon of the day following the gale that those fishermen, numbering ten in all, went to the Seno-umi shoal for fishing, only to discover that the place was littered with broken spars and such like things, a few of which they picked up. Soon one of the fishermen detected a corpse bobbing up close by the boat, and they thought that some big vessel must have been wrecked thereabouts. Anyhow they decided to lift the corpse anynow they decided to lift the corpse up into their boat, and they proceeded to do so, according to an interesting custom faithfully adhered to by the fishermen living along the adjoining coast when they happen to come across a corpse at sea. "In Shizu-ura," said one of the fishermen with whom the corpserance in guestion had an in one of the fishermen with whom the correspondent in question had an interview, "In Shizu-ura, it has been always customary for the fishermen, when they meet with a human corpse at sea, to lat it up carefully, and in accordance with a certain rite. One of the fishermen in a boat crawls into the hold, and another addresses the corpse in this way: "Can't you give us a good catch? If you do we'll lift you up and treat you very carefully." Then the man in the hold has to answer thus: "All right, I shall." This cercmony was faithfully gone through by the ten fishermen above mentioned, and then they lifted up the corpse of an unknown gentieman, which they found to be dressed in foreign garment and that of a man of fine appearance.

The fishermen searched the pockets that of a man of fine appearance. The fishermen searched the pockets for anything that give clue to the identity of the unknown dead, but there was nothing in them. The pious fishermen were not deceived, for that night they got a splendid catch, and in the evening of the following day they returned to Shizu-ura, with the corpse in their boat. They reported the matter to the Village once, and the unknown remains were interred with due ceremony on the 21st uit. Such was the ceremony on the 21st ult. Such was the account which those fishermen told the correspondent of the Chuo about the corpse of Captain Matsumoto, which was afterward identified by the deceas-ed's own wife.

One of the Warrimoo's officers said that owing to the rough time at sea and the laziness and lack of ambition on the part of the majority of the men, they lav in their bunks for nearly a week, and in order to cleanse their quarters it was necessary to smoke the men out with sulphur and hot coals. Had this not been done there would have been great danger of disease on board the ship

PIRIT of Love, I pray.
On this Holy Christmas morn, Build Thou within my heart a Bethlehem That there the Savior may be born. That which I seek I ask not for myself alone, But for each soul eternal, all the Father's own. Lest we remember not the meaning of today, Let us, aspiring, lift our hearts and pray.

To him who feels the import of the time, From frozen fields to sunny tropic clime, There comes upon this day a magic calm, Healing his world-wounds like a precious balm, Creating new his love for human-kind And leaving little life-lusts far behind. So let the spirit of this Christmas Day Expand the heart and drive all care away.

"Peace on earth, good will to every man," God's message to the world when Christmast'de began, Sounds round the earth at this time, year by year, Stirring the souls of those who will but hear, Forever feeding Hope's undying flame— That some day Christ will to the world proclaim Sweet Peace the ruler and inhuman War, Stript of his power, on Time's sad face a scar.

In every heart and home on this, Christ's natal-day, May joy abound and peace and love hold sway. And may each soul, held by the Father dear, Find Christmas every day throughout the year Let joy become more joyous, sorrow sleep, As, shining o'er the desert hills and deep, The Star of Bethlehem, radiant in the morn, Proclaims the Savior of the World is born,
